A Frightening Halloween Night!

It was a Adjective Halloween night when I took my Number year old family member - brother dad mom grandma etc trick 'r treating. I went as a Noun and my same family member used dressed up as a Noun. We visited almost every house in our neighborhood adjective plus ER than expected so we decided to trick 'r verb in the next neighborhood, the Adjective area where rich people verb. We got giant plural dessert - muffins cakes etc, liquid dipped candy plural fruit and even full-size single food item bars! This was way adjective plus ER than our neighborhood! Then we came to a huge mansion on the section - middle beginning end of the street that was completely verb plus ED out in holiday decorations including fake earthly substance - fire smoke sun wind etc and creepy music coming from their Noun. We walked up to the Noun and knocked. The same noun as last slowly opened and made a type of sound - whistle laugh pound etc sound, we knew this was going to be Adjective! But no one came to the door, we yelled [ Is anyone Adjective? ] but still no answer. My same family member used pushed the Noun and walked inside. I followed. We both looked at each other and verb plus ED. That's when we saw a huge Noun of treats with a sign that said [ verb Yourself! ]. We did, we each took a giant rainbow single food item. When we turned around, there stood a figure wearing a color robe with an over-sized single piece of clothing and an old man or woman mask holding a Noun. It told us to verb and then pulled out a Noun. We jumped right out of our plural clothing and verb plus ED with terror. We ran straight for the Noun but couldn't get it opened. The figure came closer and we could hear it breathing Adverb, like it was emotion and wanted to verb us! We ran for the staircase when my same family member used tripped on a Noun and then my part of costume - hood cape wig mask etc fell off. Once we reached the top or bottom it was so color we couldn't see a thing. That's when the music got louder. I was so Adjective that I wasn't sure whether to verb or verb! We saw a window in the room in house and climbed out onto the deck and jumped down onto a bed of Noun - Plural. We ran home and never looked direction - down up sideways back around etc. One thing is or isnt for sure, we will always or never go back to that house again!!
