Sarah's Worst Nightmare

A long time ago there was a girl named female name. She would always Verb - Base Form as soon as anyone started Verb - Present ends in ING about school subject. She had had a Adjective time during here high school life, and her same school subject teacher in particular had been very Adjective. His name was MR male name and he had a really Adjective country accent. Noone liked him much because he smelled like Noun and Noun - Plural. One time he was trying to teach same female name about the magic of Adjective Noun and he literally just Verb - Past Tense right then and there. Of course same female name cried, typical of her, but what else could she do? In an attempt to move on from this Adjective experience, she got a job at fast food chain store, as far away from same school subject as you could possibly get. Little did she know that Mr same male name lived right next door to same fast food chain. Customers had been complaining of a Adjective smell coming from same fast food chain, and same female name, like everyone else, was mildly curious. So she went to investigate, considering all possible options. As she was checking the Noun - Plural, she heard a strange kind of Verb - Present ends in ING sound in the distance. She almost cried then and there, but she soldiered on. Then she heard it again! Bracing herself, with tears in her eyes, she turned to face her killer. It was Mr same male name. She smelt the Adjective scent straight away and new he was the culprit. She cried Adverb. Mr same male name just Verb - Past Tense, brandished a Adjective Noun and screamed "FAT! Its just a Adjective Noun fool!" in his heavy accent. That was the end of same female name.
