Zombie World Mad Lib Scavenger Hunt

In a time of relative peace, you and your little sibling accidentally created a strain of the zombie virus plaguing the world today. But you kept that between yourselves...

I.

It began when you and your little sibling went out to a basketball game early in the spring of 2018. You both were rushing out of your house to get to the game (as often happens for you) when instead of feeding your pet _____ Animal _____, _____ name of the person closest to you _____, the regular food, some mysterious experimental food you got free from work ended up in the bowl. After the game _____ your pet _____ escaped and bit a random _____ childhood dream job _____.

II.

Now, it's been _____ Number of socks in your drawer _____ weeks since you and your little sibling have been in the store you've stayed in for most of the unexpected zombie apocalypse. Now that you're leaving for a potentially less overrun town, you each search for an extra weapon to take with you all. You already have a _____ Noun _____, but you both know that bullets bring more zombies. You need something stealthier. Your little sibling searched and searched to find a/an _____ The first thing you see when you enter the kitchen _____, surely this will help. In the dirty bathroom, you find a _____ Something on your desk or table _____. When you return to each other after _____ How many bananas are in your home _____ minutes, you both are ready to go. However, you question your little sibling who has an extra weapon -

_____ The first thing you find in a purse or backpack _____,

"Just in case!" !" your little sibling explained. You shake your head and you head out.

It would be a long and Adjective journey to get to the hospital. You and your little sibling had been alone mostly from the start of the outbreak - which immediately separated you from everyone you both knew (in this world you have different families, okay?) and were used to each other's company. This, though, was different because you and your little sibling were both tired of only seeing each other. Seeing other people could lead to dangers such as: Noun, and Verb Base Form, and worst of all noun found in the bathroom. So you stuck to each other, bittersweetly.

""I wish The last artist you listened to was here with us!" !" your little sibling mentioned halfway through the journey along the newly First landscape example you find on bing land of Ohio. Over the past number of weeks weeks, you'd gotten lost due to the map being out of date now that the land had changed shape. And because there was rain, you were already further behind than expected.

""I wish we never had to leave the Adjective store." ." You muttered, under your breath.

""It was only because those A pack of mythical animals attacked us. Far out of our control." ." Your little sibling responded, logically.

You both stop at a gas station. You ponder the map and where you are for a moment. ""What are we going to do ? Are we going to stay here for tonight?" Your little sibling asked." ?

""No , let's get to another shelter...maybe that The last store you went to will be a good place to stay." ." You told them.

""Not that Location , behind you?" ?" your little sibling pointed out.

""Have they ever been safe for us?" ?"

""No , I suppose not." ." your little sibling said, shaking their head as flashlights appeared inside the BNB.

III.

Once you arrived at the store, you needed to clear it out. You went to do it with or without weapon) , finding a wild Your favorite animal . You had to beg your little sibling to keep it. your little sibling let you, but it was meant to be your to care for. Before you both could get to sleep, there were still some zombies inside to clear out. your little sibling, ready to sleep, decided to use their style of fighting skills that they hid from you (lest you use those skills for your advantage)). Surprised, you stared and before you could realize it, more zombies were behind you.

" "Watch out!" !" a voice yelled behind you. In the open area you planned to sleep in, a man's voice appeared.

He was alive!

He has a A quiet object in your home that he kills many of the zombies with. He makes a way toward you. He's a big guy, a football player in another life. Here, he's your group's newest member.

""Thanks for the save." ." You say, cautiously.

""I'm Alex . Let me get to the point. I know it's hard to find a group out here, most are untrustworthy, so let me prove that I'm not going to Verb Base Form you." ." He says quickly.

""Yeah , better." ." your little sibling says, holding a An object you'd find in a basement up to him menacingly.

He explains where he's from and where he's heading. He's been alone for a while, a lot like you and your little sibling and since hasn't been able to trust many groups due to Things you dislike the most and Things you dislike the most.

You share your story saying:

" " the chorus to your favorite song " "

And thus, Alex joins you both on the journey to the hospital. Now you all are a bit safer than before.
