One day, as you're _____ Verb ending in ing home from school, a _____ Adjective portal opens up beneath your feet. You are stupefied and can only gape as it sucks you into the ground, swallowing you whole. You can only see black before it opens again and dumps you into the sandy dunes of the Sahara desert. You struggle in the heat, walking in no particular direction, until all of a sudden, you see Arabic men on horseback _____ Verb _____
ending in ing towards you. You shout in alarm and scramble in the opposite, but weary keeps you from moving too fast. The next thing you know, one of the men's arms wraps around your _____ Body part heaves you up on the horse. You pass out and awake to the sound of a voice, seemingly talking to you with endearment. You look up and see a young Egyptian stroking your cheek. Screaming, and without hesitation, you push the man away, struggling to a sitting position. He looks hurt, but when he reaches out to feed you grapes, you can't help but slap his hand away. He simply smirks and tries to grab your hands, but you stand up on the other side of the bed and back away towards the open window. The young man looks angry, and suddenly rushes at you. Out of reflex, you back up, but accidentally slip out the window. You shout as you descend towards the ground, scrunching your eyes closed and bracing yourself. When you feel the ground on your back, it is slow, and not at all painful. When you look up, you see that your back on the sidewalk, as if you'd never left.
