GBC in the Future

Imagine the year is 2186, Goldey-Beacom College sits perched on top of its hill off of Limestone Road. The shopping center now has several new places to shop including a Proper Noun, Proper Noun, and a Noun all the women at the college love. The president of GBC wants to add a car battery charging stations to the parking lot to generate extra revenue for the Noun. The student body has Verb - Base Form to over 5,000 students and the dorms are now located on the main campus and upperclassman above the shopping center across the street. Although, GBC is still a business school much about its Verb - Base Form has changed. The Jones Center is now a Noun Noun fully equipped with a Noun, three court Noun, and huge weight room. The Hirons Library is now all Adjective, but you may rent Noun - Plural and other technologies there. The dorms are all high rise buildings. But one thing that has remained is the one on one Noun students can enjoy. No class is over Number students. If you cant make it to class, all classes can be verb Noun, but its still not like being there!
