That day was a day I will always Adjective. That day a major disaster broke out. There was an urban storm massive enough to destroy New York. I Adjective to Adjective what caused it. My Adjective was bob and this is my story.

I was walking in the sparse neighborhood when Adjective of nowhere I was mugged. I was forced to lie in Verb - Base Form position while they searched me for money. They did not know Adjective I was or cared, they just wanted money. I then fractured Verb - Base Form legs and proceeded Adjective topple them. After I fled. The next morning I woke up and got a call from the agency. I forgot to tell you I worked for the weather office. Anyway they said I Adjective come down to the office Verb - Base Form. I predicted this was something important. It was. My Doppler scanner showed signs of an immense storm circling around the Pacific Adjective. To give you an idea of how Adjective this storm is actually my employer said we have to send you Adjective space to see it. I could Adjective the weather alerts going out right now saying evacuate immediately to Asia. If we did not get them to evacuate it would be catastrophe. I asked my boss are you Adjective out alerts I said no said my boss we do not think it is a big deal. I knew I had to evacuate Adjective America. Adjective? That was the Adjective. I needed to get on a major news network.

So I went to one of my friends on CBS. He told me it would take a few months. I knew Adjective storm would hit in a few days. I knew what I had to do. A day later with a few friends I decided to storm the castle. I broke into the network and told the world to Adjective. You Adjective think it worked. Nope Adjective died. Not the way the story is supposed to end. And it was my fault. I could not convince _____ country to evacuate. I hope the world will keep on _____ without the U.S. I am going to retreat to care _____ a hospital and a mental home.
