The _____ Adjective _____

During the _____ Adjective _____ of 2003, events in the northeastern United _____ Adjective _____ involving a strange, humanlike _____ Adjective _____ sparked brief local _____ Adjective _____ interest before an apparent _____ Adjective _____ was enacted. Little or no _____ Adjective _____ was left intact, as most online and _____ Adjective _____ accounts of the _____ Adjective _____ were mysteriously _____ Adjective _____.

Primarily focused in rural _____ Adjective _____ York state, self proclaimed _____ Adjective _____ told stories of thier

_____ Adjective _____ with a _____ Adjective _____ of unkown _____ Adjective _____. _____ Adjective _____ ranged from extremely traumatic _____ Adjective _____ of fright and _____ Adjective _____, to an almost _____ Adjective _____ sense of playfulness and _____ Adjective _____. While their published _____ Adjective _____ are no longer on record, the _____ Adjective _____ remained powerful. Several of the involved _____ Adjective _____ began looking for _____ Adjective _____ that year.

In early _____ Adjective _____, the collaboration had _____ Number _____ nearly two dozen _____ Adjective _____ dating between the 12th _____ Adjective _____ and present _____ Adjective _____, spanning 4 _____ Adjective _____. In almost all _____ Adjective _____, the stories were _____ Adjective _____. I've been in contact with a _____ Adjective _____ of this group and was able to get some excepts from their upcoming _____ Adjective _____.

A Suicide _____ Adjective _____: _____ Adjective _____

As I prepare to take my _____ Adjective _____, I feel it necessary to assuage any guilt or _____ Adjective _____ I have introduced through this act. It is not the _____ Adjective _____ of anyone other than _____ Adjective _____. For once I awoke and felt his _____ Adjective _____. And once I awoke and saw his _____ Adjective _____. Once again I awoke and heard his _____ Adjective _____, and looked into his _____ Adjective _____. I cannot sleep without _____ Adjective _____ of what I might next awake to experience. I cannot _____ Adjective _____ wake. _____ Adjective _____.

Found in the same wooden _____ Adjective _____ were two empty _____ Adjective _____ addressed to _____ Adjective _____ and _____ Adjective _____, and one loose personal _____ Adjective _____ with no _____ Adjective _____.

'Dearest _____ Adjective _____,

I have prayed for you. He _____ Adjective _____ your name.'

A _____ Adjective _____ Entry (translated from _____ Adjective _____): 1880

I have _____ Adjective _____ the greatest terror. I have _____ Adjective _____ the greatest terror. I have _____ Adjective _____ greatest terror. I see his _____ Adjective _____ when I close mine. They are _____ Adjective _____, _____ Adjective _____. They saw me and pierced _____ Adjective _____. His wet _____ Adjective _____. I will not _____ Adjective _____. His _____ Adjective _____ (unintelligible text).

A _____ Adjective _____ Log: 1691

He came to me in my _____ Adjective _____. From the foot of my _____ Adjective _____ I felt a _____ Adjective _____. He took _____ Adjective _____. We must return to _____ Adjective _____. We shall not return here again at the request of the _____ Adjective _____.

From a _____ Adjective _____: 2006

Three years ago, I had just returned from a trip from _____ Adjective _____ Falls with my _____ Adjective _____ for the 4th of _____ Adjective _____. We were all very _____ Adjective _____ after a long _____ Adjective _____ of _____ Adjective _____, so my _____ Adjective _____ and I put the _____ Adjective _____ right to bed and called it a _____ Adjective _____.

At about 4am, I woke up thinking my _____ Adjective _____ had gotten up to use the _____ Adjective _____. I used the moment to steal back the _____ Adjective _____, only to _____ Adjective _____ him in the process. I appologized and told him

I thought he got out of _____ Adjective _____. When he turned to face _____ Adjective _____, he gasped and pulled his _____ Adjective _____ up from the end of the _____ Adjective _____ so quickly his _____ Adjective _____ almost knocked me out of the _____ Adjective _____. He then _____ Adjective _____ me and said nothing.

After adjusting to the _____ Adjective _____ for a half second, I was able to see what caused the strange _____ Adjective _____. At the foot of the _____ Adjective _____, sitting and facing away from _____ Adjective _____, there was what appeared to be a naked _____ Adjective _____, or a large hairless _____ Adjective _____ of some sort. Its body _____ Adjective _____ was disturbing and unnatural, as if it had been hit by a _____ Adjective _____ or something. For some reason, I was not instantly _____ Adjective _____ by it, but more concerned as to its _____ Adjective _____. At this point I was somewhat under the _____ Adjective _____ that we were supposed to help him.

My _____ Adjective _____ was peering over his arm and _____ Adjective _____, tucked into the fetal _____ Adjective _____, occasionally glancing at me before returning to the _____ Adjective _____.

In a flurry of motion, the _____ Adjective _____ scrambled around the side of the _____ Adjective _____, and then crawled quickly in a _____ Adjective _____ sort of motion right along the _____ Adjective _____ until it was less than a _____ Adjective _____ from my _____ Adjective _____ face. The _____ Adjective _____ was completely silent for about 30 _____ Adjective _____ (or probably closer to _____ Adjective _____, it just seemed like a while) just looking at my _____ Adjective _____. The creature then placed its _____ Adjective _____ on his _____ Adjective _____ and ran into the _____ Adjective _____, leading to the kids' _____ Adjective _____.

I screamed and ran for the _____ Adjective _____, planning to stop him before he hurt my _____ Adjective _____. When I got to the _____ Adjective _____, the _____ Adjective _____ from the bedroom was enough to see it crouching and hunched over about 20 feet away. He turned around and looked directly at me, covered in _____ Adjective _____. I flipped the _____ Adjective _____ on the wall and saw my _____ Adjective _____ Clara.

The _____ Adjective _____ ran down the stairs while my _____ Adjective _____ and I rushed to help our _____ Adjective _____. She was very badly injured and spoke only once more in her short _____ Adjective _____. She said "he is the _____ Adjective _____".

My _____ Adjective _____ drove his _____ Adjective _____ into a _____ Adjective _____ that night, while rushing our _____ Adjective _____ to the _____ Adjective _____. He did not _____ Adjective _____.

Being a small _____ Adjective _____, _____ Adjective _____ got around pretty quickly. The _____ Adjective _____ were helpful at first, and the local _____ Adjective _____ took a lot of interest as well. However, the _____ Adjective _____ was never published and the local _____ Adjective _____ news never followed up either.

For several months, my _____ Adjective _____ Justin and I stayed in a _____ Adjective _____ near my _____ Adjective _____ house.

After we decided to return _____ Adjective _____, I began looking for _____ Adjective _____ myself. I eventually located a _____ Adjective _____ in the next _____ Adjective _____ over who had a similar _____ Adjective _____. We got in contact and began talking about our _____ Adjective _____. He knew of two other people in _____ Adjective _____ York who had seen the _____ Adjective _____ we now referred to as the _____ Adjective _____.

It took the four of us about two solid _____ Adjective _____ of hunting on the _____ Adjective _____ and writing _____ Adjective _____ to come up with a small collection of what we believe to be accounts of the _____ Adjective _____.

None of them gave any _____ Adjective _____, _____ Adjective _____ or _____ Adjective _____ _____ Adjective _____. One _____ Adjective _____ had an entry involving the creature in its first 3 pages, and never _____ Adjective _____ it again. A _____ Adjective _____ log explained nothing of the encounter, saying only that they were told to leave by the _____ Adjective _____. That was the last entry in the _____ Adjective _____.

There were, however, many instances where the _____ Adjective _____ visit was one of a series of _____ Adjective _____ with the same _____ Adjective _____. Multiple _____ Adjective _____ also mentioned being spoken to, my _____ Adjective _____ included. This led us to wonder if the _____ Adjective _____ had visited any of us before our last _____ Adjective _____.

I set up a digital _____ Adjective _____ near my bed and left it running all night, every night, for two _____ Adjective _____. I would tediously scan through the _____ Adjective _____ of me rolling around in my _____ Adjective _____.

each day when I woke up. By the end of the second _____, I was quite used to the occasional _____ of sleep while blurring through the _____ at 8 times the normal speed. (This still took almost an _____ every day)

On the first _____ of the third _____, I thought I heard something different. What I found was a shrill _____. It was the _____. I can't listen to it long enough to even begin to _____ it. I haven't let anyone _____ to it yet. All I _____ is that I've heard it before, and I now believe that it spoke when it was sitting in front of my _____. I don't remember hearing anything at the _____, but for some reason, the voice on the _____ immediately brings me back to that _____.

The _____ that must have gone through my _____ head make me very upset.

I have not seen the _____ since he ruined my _____, but I know that he has been in my _____ while I slept. I know and _____ that one night I'll wake up to see him staring at me.
