Ancient Greece Temple Building

Once upon a time, in _____ Adjective Greece, the God _____ Proper Noun, God of _____ Noun, demanded a temple built in his honor. The people of _____ First Adjective Greece realized that with no _____ first improper noun, the would be ni _____ Adjective side to there beloved _____ Noun - Plural. They immediatly began erecting a temple made from solid ivory. In the end, a _____ Adjective temple was created, an the god said, "You have fulfilled my destiny! Thank you. I now present you with the most _____ Adjective _____ first improper noun ever made. _____ Noun _____ first improper noun." The Greeks ate and ate the most delicious thing they had ever tasted. Everything worked out just fine. THE END.
