Al-Qaida Zombies-Clayton Breneman

The day that I got deployed was fun but also kind of scary. Leaving thewas the hardest part because we had to leave our families knowing that we may never see them again. When we got onto the massive and left the reality really set in. 10 hours later we landed in a remote part of It was dark when we arrived. We knew nothing of the mission that we were being sent to do, all we knew that it was a highly classified Event . When we stepped of the plane an eerie fog Verb in and we could hear groans. We all looked at each other and were wondering what we have got ourselves into.
Then out of nowherezombie cameverb ending in ingout of the fog toward us. He was covered in blood and pale. We told it to stop but when it kept running we openedbut it kept toward us. It finally dropped after about 30 rounds from an We immediately went back into the plane and asked our sergeant what that thing was. He told us that it was an Al-Qaida zombie and this was the special operation that we had signed up for. He told us that our mission objective was to clear an old Al-Qaida weaponsand that a few days ago was overrun by zombies. He also told us not to get bit or we would turn intoand would have to be shot. And then he told us good luck and to proceed with the
