The Best Summer I Ever Had

It was the first _____^{Noun} of summer, and where was I? Stuck in school! Even though I _____^{Adverb} try to keep a _____^{Adjective} attitude, I was feeling pretty _____^{Adjective} when my _____^{Noun} dropped me off at Amador Valley Senior High School that morning. I _____^{Adjective} walked to my classroom, H3, wishing I was _____^{Noun} ending in ing instead of starting another mind-numbingly boring school day. When I opened the door to my classroom, I was shocked. Instead of old, broken-down desks, there were plastic beach chairs all over the room. Then I noticed the floor wasn't covered with worn-down industrial carpeting - it was piles of golden sand! As I stood there with my mouth gaping open, I noticed this adjective woman lounging in a plastic kiddie pool in the corner of the room. She was wearing adjective sea shells in her long hair.

"Hi, there!" she called to me. "I'm Ms. Alvarez, your summer school teacher." I stumbled over in disbelief, and to my complete and utter surprise, I saw that she was a mermaid! "I hope you don't mind the classroom set-up," she said brightly, "but due to my condition, this is how I teach most effectively. Also, Thursday classes will be held at the beach. That won't be a problem, will it?"
