Our Nation's Capital

On a hot and _____ day in late May, Katie arrived in Washington, DC to visit her _____ and _____ boyfriend Eric. Although Eric was in DC for a _____ internship, he was more interested in _____ while Katie was there. After giving her a very _____ welcome, he and Katie got ready for dinner by dressing in their best _____ clothes.

Katie and Eric walked _____ in _____ to the Metro station, where they caught an underground _____ into the heart of the city. They walked around looking at _____ monuments, and had a _____ dinner at a _____ restaurant called Old Ebbitt Grille. They sat next to some very interesting people at dinner, including a _____ Australian bloke and a _____ father who warned them against having _____.

After dinner, the couple visited more monuments that were lit up _____ in the darkness. Katie was most excited to see the Lincoln Memorial, and she and Eric were a bit _____ to see so many people there late at night. It was a _____ sight, though, and Eric even ran into a fellow traveling _____ who kindly took their _____ in front of Honest Abe.

After a _____ walk back to the Metro station, Katie and Eric found themselves back in Tenleytown. They were pretty _____ from all the _____, and their _____ hurt a bit, but they were really happy to be together after weeks apart. As they snuggled in Eric's bed, he said the words that Katie had been hoping to hear for a long time: I Verb - Base Form you.
