Life on the Farm

Everyday is the same things, Preposition or subordinating conjunction the horses to the hens. I start my day off by doing chores at 6 am, I feed them Friskies cat food. Then I make my way to the hens, I first get the eggs, and then feed them corn, and water them. I feed the horses one bale of hay, then also water them. My Kristine feeds the bottle baby calf, she feeds her with a calf bottle.
At 5 pm Kristine and I go out to the farm and repeat the chores. All the animals get fed twice a day. We do not live at the, the farm is my grandparents, Connie and Mike Collins. When they are not home we do all the farm chores. When not home we feed Maggie and Tinker, they are the farm in house dogs. Also water the flowers in and outside Mike let me mow the yard once but i don't think he don't want me to get hurt.
