MR. _____^{Adjective}: No _____^{Noun} thinks more highly than I do of the patriotism, as well as abilities, of the very _____^{Adjective} _____^{Noun - Plural} who have just addressed the _____^{Proper Noun}. But different men often see the same subject in different lights; and, therefore, I hope it will not be thought _____^{Adjective} to those gentlemen if, entertaining as I do, opinions of a character very _____^{Adjective} to theirs, I shall speak forth my _____^{Noun - Plural} freely, and without reserve. This is no time for ceremony. The question before the House is one of awful _____^{Noun} to this country. For my own part, I consider it as nothing less than a question of freedom or slavery; and in _____^{Noun} to the magnitude of the subject ought to be the freedom of the debate. It is only in this way that we can _____^{Verb} to arrive at truth, and fulfil the great responsibility which we hold to God and our _____^{Noun}. Should I keep back my opinions at such a _____^{Noun}, through fear of giving offence, I should consider myself as _____^{Adjective} of treason towards my country, and of an act of disloyalty toward the majesty of heaven, which I revere above all _____^{Adjective} kings.
