The State Cross-Country Meet

It was a _____ day and everything outside was soggy. We all _____ at camp shivering, desperately trying to keep from getting wet. There were _____ of people everywhere.

The weather slowly cleared up, just in time for the cross-country races to start. We stretched as a _____ _____ waiting for our turn to race. Finally, the announcer called us to the start line. We took our places on the line, and _____ waited for the starter to begin. While we were waiting Sarah and I _____ went over our plan to use our pack running skills to get the highest team score. Not long after, the starter came out and _____ explained the rules. Then the starter _____ his megaphone and shouted in it the two words I had been waiting to hear all day, ready, set, and then the _____ went off and the race was started. Sarah and I got out hard and soon enough we were in the lead pack, passing people one by one on my signal. " _____, there's _____ everywhere!" I _____.

We made our way up and down the _____ hills and through the _____ course, and when we hit the mark where there was only about 400m left we _____.

I crossed the finish line in 8th place, and we took 3rd as a team at the state cross-country meet.
