Magic Kaito

My name is _____ First Name of a Person Kuroba. I am an ordinary prank -loving, _____ Noun -phobic high school student who dreams of becoming a world-class magician like his father by day, but by night I am the famous Phantom Thief _____ Number, better known as Kaitou Kid.

It all started when I found a secret room in my house belonging to my father, who's been dead for _____ Number years. He had left me a message on a cassette tape, but the thing was pretty busted up by the time I got there, so it was _____ Adjective what it said. The room was full of equipment for pulling off magic tricks and thefts.

There was also a costume hanging up: a white magician's suit complete with matching top hat, _____ Article of _____ Clothing, and a monocle. This stuff looked like it belonged to a thief who had been making headlines for reappearing after an eight-year absence that began around the time my father was killed in an accident performing magic on-stage.

I had to know: was my _____ Noun really an internationally-wanted criminal? I decided to put on the costume I'd found and attend the heist that Kaitou Kid had announced that night to see if this _____ Adjective Kid could tell me anything.

turns out that the Kid that had recently reappeared was my father's old assistant, Jii-chan. He mistook me for my father at first and confessed that he had only put on the costume in order to draw my father's Noun - Plural out of hiding. Upset, I demanded that Jii-chan tell me the truth about my father. When Jii-chan confirmed that my father was indeed the original Kaitou Kid, I decided right then and there that I was going to Verb - Base Form Kaitou Kid in place of my father. I was going to draw his murderers out of hiding, and Jii-chan was going to help me.
