Health Science Word Libs!

The job I do is to chew. With help from the tongue food is _____ _____ to the long tube called the esophagus. At the end of the tube, is where the food is _____ _____ into the stomach. Once the food is _____ and churned it is called chime. The chime is then _____ _____ into the small intestine where it is mixed further with insulin ejected from the pancreas. Next, the chime and insulin mixture are swirled around in the small intestine with a substance called bile. Bile is _____ _____ from the liver into the small intestine. Now the bile, insulin and chime all _____ _____ together are pushed into the large intestine where the caecum removes excess water and salt. What is left is waste that gets _____ _____ down to the rectum and emptied by the anus. What human body system is made from those parts?
