When Adjective was        years old his parents took a journey Proper Noun .

It seemed very odd to the little boy to live in a place where there were so many Noun, and such great

Noun. After a while the Noun grew Adjective, and he had to wear thick

Adjective Noun. The Noun in which they lived was Verb - Past Participle by a furnace; but one day they had a Noun of Noun - Plural on the hearth. Proper Noun enjoyed it very much, and thought the bright blaze so Adverb.

The sky was Adjective and Noun one Noun, and Verb - Past Participle had been standing by the Determiner watching the street Noun - Plural. Suddenly the air grew Adjective, and he could Adverb see the houses opposite. Something Adjective and fell slowly down and rested on the Noun Noun. Then it disappeared. But more and more of the little flakes came, until there was quite a Noun outside of the Noun.

Proper Noun opened the sash gently, Adjective it might fly away. He was surprised when he touched it to find it so Adjective. He took some up in his Noun, but in a moment it was only a drop of Noun.

By that time the Determiner and the Proper Noun - Plural Noun - Plural and Adverb were quite white. Proper Noun was puzzled to find a name for the Adjective white substance, so he ran to his Noun and asked her about it.

She told him it was Noun, and because the air was so Adjective on the beautiful island where he was born they never had any.

The next Adjective he saw the little Verb - Present Tense of the neighborhood playing in it; but before Noun the sun was so Adjective and Adjective the snow had all Verb - Past Participle away.

When the second snow-storm came Harry's papa brought home a beautiful Coordinating conjunction, and gave his
