The Proposal

After months of planning and extensive _____ Noun shopping Peter had a plan: _____ Proper Noun D.C.! On the same weekend in March, the Humphrey School had conveniently set a _____ Adjective trip for Peter and Amy had interviews for her PMF Fellows Program. While the actual festival had not yet begun, the cherry blossom _____ Noun - Plural had bloomed two weeks early, and it seemed everything would work out perfectly. Peter planned an exciting day of apartment _____ Noun, _____ Verb - Present Tense St. Patrick's Day, and going to see the monuments. After taking a crowded but pleasant stroll by the Washington Monument, the MLK Memorial, and around the Tidal Basin, Peter pulled Amy off to the side of the FDR Memorial and got down on one knee. After _____ Verb - Present Tense his love he asked her to marry him. Amy said yes! The crowd around them _____ Verb - Past Tense and a kind observer even took _____ Noun - Plural of the proposal! She was not surprised by it all but Peter is not so sure ;-). (Amy could tell Peter was _____ Adjective and _____ Adjective that day. She had picked up on his hints about big things happening very soon and knew something was up when Peter was very concerned about the schedule for the day).
