The Subjunctive I form Verb - 3rd Person Singular Present used with indirect discourse when reporting what someone says in a formal, impartial way. The indicative Proper Noun - Plural also be used to Proper Noun - Plural a Proper Noun - Plural of fact, while the subjunctive II can be used to imply the statement is open to Noun (since subjunctive II is used with contrary to fact statements.) These three distinctions are quite Adjective, although they are important. In Adjective conversation, the tendency is to avoid the subjunctive I and to choose instead between Determiner Adjective and subjunctive II.
