MEOW

There once was a           Noun           who wanted to be a kitten. Her name was           Proper Noun          . Life was hard for           Proper Noun           because she was so           Adjective          ,           Adjective          , and           Adjective          , but no one would love her. Every day, people would come into her home at the           Noun           shelter and stare around, but they'd always choose the kittens.           Proper Noun           had had enough of this so she decided that she was going to           Verb           to York University and catch a           ridiculous method of transportation           to a better place. When the night came,           Proper Noun           would practice escaping from her cage using her           Adjective           teeth that she never showed to anyone unless she was super           Adjective          . Finally, on the 21st day of the month,           Proper Noun           decided it was time to leave her cat life behind and venture to           Location           where no one knew her name or birthday.

          Proper Noun                     Adjective           opened her cage, scaled the wall, and pushed out through the cat door. Once she was outside she had to dig a           Noun           underneath the fence. She wasn't super excited about getting her fur all           Adjective          , but you gotta do, what you gotta do! As she was           Verb - Present Tense           under the fence, she heard a           sound           and noticed the lights of the shelter turned on. Someone was           Verb - Present Tense          !           Proper Noun           tried to move faster, but her           Adjective                     Adjective           tail got stuck in the           Noun          . In order to escape, she had to           Verb           some of the hair from her tail. Once she was finally out, she           Verb - Past Tense           and turned to analyze the situation from a safe distance. A figure came through the cat door. It was no one other than ET! She looked very           Verb - Past Participle           so           Proper Noun           went up to ET to ask her if she was okay. ET stared           Adverb           into space and repeated "meow.

I'm fine. meow". _____ Proper Noun didn't know what to do so she _____ Verb - Past Tense and _____ Verb - Past Tense. ET was obviously a lost cause.

_____ Proper Noun was out in the _____ Location all alone. The winds started _____ Verb - Present ends in ING and the rains started _____ Verb - Present ends in ING, but _____ Proper Noun refused to take a cat taxi. After _____ Number days and _____ Number nights, _____ Proper Noun finally arrived at York University to meet her _____ ridiculous method of transportation to take her far far far away where she could start another one of her nine lives and pose as a kitten.

The _____ ridiculous method of transportation was much more fantastic than _____ Proper Noun had ever imagined. On the trip she met another cat name _____ Proper noun 2. The two of them laughed at the other's name, meowed, and purred. It was a very _____ Adjective trip until the _____ ridiculous method of transportation had to make a pit stop at a place called "The _____ Location". The two cats were extremely _____ Adjective and decided that they should play some milk pong while they waited. After winning over _____ Number games and drinking all of the milk they could, the two cats snuggled together in their _____ Adjective fur and _____ Verb - Past Tense.

_____ Proper Noun looked at _____ Proper noun 2 and asked him if he was kitten. _____ Proper noun 2 responded that he wasn't, but that he wanted to be. _____ Proper Noun meowed with excitement and exclaimed how she wanted to be a kitten too. The two of them meowed lots and lots and decided that they would both be kittens.
And the two kittens left the _____ Location via _____ ridiculous method of transportation and lived the most lavish lives.
