Adventures in Lady Love

Once there was a           Noun           from new york who met a           Noun           from Connecticut on a           Adjective           adventure in New Jersey. They immediately hit it off and became best friends and pocket           Noun          , always wanting to be near each other. After a night out on the town and some           Verb -                     Present ends in S          , they were long distance but yet inseparable. They both had dreams of moving to Los Angeles and one day they packed the car and had a           Adjective           journey on the road headed west. They had           Adjective           times and           Adjective           times, traveled north to           Adjective                     Noun           and south to San Diego. They spent days at the           Noun          , nights smoking           Noun          , and always had a blast hanging with each other. They snuggled every night and missed each other when they were apart. They loved each other too much that the pressure became           Adjective           and they took a break. The           Noun           from New York didn't want to let the Connecticut           Noun           go, so she asked her out every day until she said yes, until finally, on February 22, the lady finally said yes. And they lived happily ever after.
