

Erin and Rob

1. Noun
2. Adjective
3. Verb - Past Tense
4. Verb - Present Ends In Ing
5. Adjective
6. Year
7. Adjective
8. Adjective
9. Noun
10. Event
11. Verb - Present Ends In Ing
12. Verb - Present Tense
13. Adverb
14. Noun
15. Noun - Plural
16. Noun - Plural
17. Noun - Plural
18. Noun - Plural
19. Verb - Past Tense
20. Pronoun
21. Noun
22. Verb - Past Participle
23. Adjective

Erin and Rob

Who would have thought in 2001 when we met that we would be where we are today. It is only through a _____ Noun that anyone survives highschool, but we were especially _____ Adjective and intolerable (especially to one another). Upon a chance reunion in 2007, a unlikely friendship _____ Verb - Past Tense and in 2009 we began _____ Verb - Present ends in ING. We all know the story from there, but it is always _____ Adjective to look back on how lucky we really were to have found one another, and the story of us as a couple.

Rob and I met in _____ Year, my freshman year of high school. It was his senior. No, it was not love at first sight. He thought I was _____ Adjective (what freshman isn't?), I thought he was _____ Adjective. After he graduated, we saw each other infrequently at best; and eventually, I graduated too, and forgot he existed. I'm sure he didn't remember me either, to give him _____ Noun. Then, a chance run two years after _____ Event led to a brief stint of couch surfing (actually, it was more like a month _____ Verb - Present ends in ING on my pull out sofa), and eventually, a close friendship. About a month before we started _____ Verb - Present Tense, that friendship got a bit more _____ Adverb. While our friends had been guessing the two of us would wind up together for years, we were, in all _____ Noun, happy being only _____ Noun - Plural until then. And, the realization that it should be more was therefore more of a shock to us than many others, we are sure. While we spent time together, talked, and attempted to "grow up" and simply express our feelings like _____ Noun - Plural, it wasn't until I confronted him on his frequent attempts to destroy my relationship with previous _____ Noun - Plural, and then, _____ Noun - Plural to prevent me from dating that we began dating (I should note, that I was not the only one questioning that day.... I only approached the topic after hours of "interview"). That conversation was interesting, dare I say. It was a bit of a flashback to high school; I _____ Verb - Past Tense him for an answer, and he eventually got fed up and told me the truth (after calling me names). I think even if you haven't heard the full story, you can imagine the conversation, knowing the two of _____ Pronoun. We all know the rest of the story! Our _____ Noun has been one that is comedic, and in many ways, one that easily could have _____ Verb - Past Participle a _____ Adjective comedy. And yet, it really is so fitting for who we were, and are today.