Where is Jim?

It was a Adjective and Adjective day at the beach, and Mr. Minami had taken a break from Sport to rest in his car. He woke with a start when a man with one eye suddenly appeared at the Noun of his Prius. "Do you know where Jim is?" he Verb - Past Tense. Utterly Adjective and having no idea who Jim could be, Mr. Minami thought Adverb. He spotted a building down the street. "He's in there!" He said to the one-eyed man. The man turned to Verb - Base Form in the direction Mr. Minami was pointing and took a few steps toward the building. He turned back to Mr. Minami and glared at him with his one good eye. "I'm really Adjective and it's a long Verb - Base Form. Do you have some liquid?"

Luckily, Mr. Minami had stopped at Bristol Farms on his way to the beach and six-packs of water bottles were on sale for $3.99. "Here," he said, handing two bottles to the man. "This is the Adjective - Ends in EST bottled water ever."

The man opened one bottle and Verb - Past Tense it Adverb. Suddenly, sirens Verb - Past Tense all around them and Number police cars sped into the parking lot!

A policeman jumped from his vehicle and raced toward the Prius. "Stop right there!" he demanded. "

This man was reported missing from the hospital and could be very Adjective!"
