Kiana's History Mad Lib

One _____ day in July a _____ man named _____ peddled his _____ bike down the _____ streets of Minneapolis. He was very cautious of where he peddled because he wanted to avoid catching the _____ flu epidemic from anybody because his _____ friend _____ has it and she says it's so _____ and _____ she would rather have a bad case of the chicken pox. While distracted in Pippins own _____ thoughts he stumbled on his messed up bicycle. When he got safely to his _____ home, Pippin felt so tired that he just wanted to lay down and rest on his _____ bed. When he awoke from his _____ dream he didn't feel so good. He must have caught that _____ epidemic! Trying to think he realized that many people have died from this epidemic in Minnesota! Yet he had to try to get better. Coughing up _____ and blowing into used kleenexes was what he did. He stayed locked up in his _____ apartment until he felt much better. After two weeks of feeling down in the dirt, _____ got up and ran all up and down the _____ streets until he got to the nearest newspaper stand. He hadn't been out in what felt like _____ days! The newspaper said that dozens of people had passed away because of the flu epidemic. He was not one of them though.
