Gettysburg Address

Four score and seven _____ Noun - Plural ago our _____ Noun - Plural brought forth on this continent a new _____Noun_____, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are _____ Verb - Past Tense equal.

Now we are _____ Verb - Past Tense in a great civil _____ Noun, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great _____ nounONE of that war. We have come to _____ Verb - Base Form a portion of that _____ nounONE, as a final _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____Noun_____ for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us--that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion--that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain--that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom--and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.
