Elissa and Zach hung out a few more times and realized that there was a connection between them worth _____ Verb - Present ends in ING. Soon enough they were _____ Verb - Present ends in ING pretty seriously.

It wasn't long after that when they both realized they wanted to tie the knot. After much debate and _____ Verb - Present ends in ING, Zach _____ Verb - Past Tense a _____ Adjective ring. He was a little _____ Adjective about giving Elissa the ring, but had a _____ Adjective afternoon _____ Verb - Past Tense. He took her to the nature preserve where they had plans for having the wedding. He set up a camera to get some lovely shots of Elissa. Thinking he forgot to put the self timer on, Elissa pointed to let him know it wasn't set up correctly. When she turned around he had pulled out a ring. He was a perfect gentleman and asked her to marry him. Of course she said yes and was delighted in her pretty ring. She was even more delighted to find that Zach hadn't forgotten about the camera. He had caught the whole proposal on film.

A few more months went by and Zach and Elissa planned a lovely fall time wedding. Two bridal showers and a bachelorette party later, and the wedding was coming right up. The stress of planning the perfect day was wearing on them, but they knew it would be all worth it in the end as they became husband and wife.

The wedding day came and went and was everything they hoped and more. They went on a short honeymoon to relax and unwind. Overall, Elissa and Zach would both call the wedding a success. Best of all, they were married now and could live....
