New York City

One day a few _____ Noun - Plural ago, my parents decided that I could finally visit New York City all by myself, but of course I would be staying at a _____ Noun - Plural house while there. I was so excited to see my _____ Noun - Plural but even more anxious to see the Big Apple! My parents dropped me off at their house _____ Coordinating conjunction there, my adventure began. It was impossible to choose what to do first but we decided on a shopping spree at the mall which was amazing because there were never such big malls where I lived in _____ Proper Noun. Then, we took a nice _____ Noun _____ Preposition or subordinating conjunction Central Park and visited the Art Museum on our way. There were a million other things I wanted to do but there's just so much that you can do in a day. By the end of the day, I had seen so many _____ Adjective things and, I couldn't wait for the next day to come.
