Hurricane Hazel

It was October 5th, 1954. The winds were _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____ and the rain was _____ Verb - Present ends _____ in ING _____ down on Amelia's head. Her hair was dripping wet, and her clothes were soaked right through. Her mom had called to say she couldn't pick her up from school, so Amelia had to walk home in the pouring rain.

As she walked, Amelia started to notice puddles forming around her feet, and she realized that the water had risen up above the street, and was now _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____ the sidewalk. Amelia started to walk faster, she wanted to reach the bridge and get home as quickly as possible.

When Amelia arrived at the bridge, it was covered in water - waves were _____ Verb - Present ends in ING _____ up over the sides! It was the only way Amelia knew how to get home, so she _____ Adverb _____ stepped onto the bridge and held onto the railing with a _____ Adjective _____ grip. The wind whipped Amelia's hair around her face as she inched across the bridge. Her hands were _____ Adjective _____, and she had to close her eyes to keep them from stinging.

When Amelia reached the middle of the bridge, she felt a sudden jolt, and all of a sudden the earth seemed to shift under her feet. She looked up and realized that one side of the bridge had come loose, and it was now being pushed down the river!
