Once Upon a Visit to the Academy

There was once a Adjective girl who decided to give all-girls education a try. She was not sure what to expect from her day at the Academy, but she was willing to take a chance. She put on her Adjective - Superlative outfit, put her hair into a Noun and headed off to school. When she first arrived, she was greeted by a Verb - Present Tense principal. The Adjective principal handed her a Adjective backpack, a Adjective schedule for the day and, of course, a Noun snack. "Exclamation," the girl shouted. I just love Noun - Plural!

Her hostess' name was Name. She was a Noun at the Academy. For the rest of the day, she followed Proper Noun from class to class meeting all the Adjective teachers. First she met the Adjective History teacher named Mr. Noun. He was a Adjective man who knew Adverb about History. Her Adjective class of the day was Noun, because she got to Verb a Noun Noun. At the end of the day, after a Adjective game of Noun, our Adjective Naz Girl completed her journey in the Great Hall with a rousing rendition of Song.

In the end, she decided all the girls were Adjective, Noun and Verb to be around. She knew her trip to the Academy was a Noun she would never forget. When she got into the Noun, she told her mom she had a Adjective time. She knew Nazareth Academy was Adverb going to be where she went to school to learn to be a Noun.
