Many years ago, on a very special day, a little boy was born and Michael was his name. To pre-school he went, a blue       Noun       in hand, where a kid named August bit him in the stomach and ran. He survived 25 bee stings at camp and a wicked line drive to his shin. He wished for a Chinchilla, a debate with his mom he would not win. His interests continue in business and Physics. They sometimes come in handy when he tries to play a long to Jeopardy. When he isn't playing golf, he loves weekends at the shore with one his two beautiful cousins. The other he also holds dear, she was his chauffeur for many years. For more family bonding, he watches Breaking Bad with Ryan. But most importantly, his teachers at school are never forgotten. A future man of business he will surely be. Watch out Tulane University!
