The Jungle Adventure

Alexander was going to find the Adjective flying Noun. It was a species nobody had previously Verb - Past Participle, but the sightings by local villagers convinced Alexander he would find it. He had spent the previous three days Verb - Present Tense to the part of the Noun that it supposedly inhabited, Verb - Present Tense and Verb - Present Tense at the humidity. When he would return to the Proper Noun however, it was going to be his Noun - Plural sweating, as they thought it was laughable to look for a Noun there was no proof for. Adjective by this negative outlook, Alexander Verb - Past Tense on, with his Noun swaying around his neck. And there! He heard a Noun!

"Did you Preposition or subordinating conjunction that?" he asked nobody in particular, because he was on his own. Another Coordinating conjunction, and Alexander readied the Preposition or subordinating conjunction, in case it was the flying lemur. Adverb it was only a Noun, and it fluttered away as Alexander approached. It would only be a matter of time though, before Alexander would find the flying Noun, he was determined.
