Sameface Syndrome

Disney has already proven that that they can _____ design female characters who don't have the Exact Same _____. Then they started doing that on Frozen, but someone -- probably one of the _____ or _____, I _____ doubt it was the _____ designers -- said, "No, make them look like _____. " And they knew full well that they looked _____ and also extremely similar to _____, because anybody with _____ can see that.

Don't even tell me it's because they're _____. If you want them to look _____ to show their family resemblance, that's fine, but there are so many ways to do it besides just _____ the Exact Same Face on both characters. And sure, there are some non-twin siblings in real life who are close to _____, but remember: Elsa and Anna are not real _____, subject to the _____ whims of _____. Every single facet of their _____ was controllable, and how they look is the result of a series of choices on Disney's part. So, why make those _____ choices? It doesn't even make sense for the _____, because Elsa's face in particular hardly fit her character or voice actress.
