The Story of an Hour (excerpt)

She arose at length and opened the door to her sister's Adjective. There was a Adjective triumph in her eyes, and she carried herself unwittingly like a goddess of Proper Noun.

She Verb - Past Tense her sister's waist, and together they Verb - Past Tense the stairs. Richards stood waiting for them at the bottom.

Some one was opening the front door with a latchkey. It was Full Name of a Person who entered, a little Adjective, composedly carrying his grip-sack and umbrella. He had been far from the scene of accident, and did not even know there had been one. He stood Verb - Past Tense at Josephine's piercing Verb - Base Form; at Richards' quick motion to screen him

But Richards was too late.

When the doctors came they said she had died of Noun disease--of Noun that kills.
