Early Civilizations

upon a time, in a land far far away there lived a group of people. These people were not cave men and women they were our first civilians, coming from the river valley civilizations and having Verb - Past Participle through the Neolithic Revolution. First we have Mesopotamia, which is synonymous with Sumer or Babylon. It is located in the crescent, the land between the Tigri River and the Euphrates Rivers. Mesopotamia was quite a civilization! They are credited with Present Tense us the first form of Verb - Present Tense call Cuneiform! Why is cuneiform so important?
Well one reason is that it allowed the King of Babylon, King Hammurabi, to the first laws! His laws were harsh, but they provided for his people.
