On the Sonnet

If by dull rhymes our must be chain'd,
And, like, the Sonnet sweet
Fetter'd, in spite of pained;
Let us find out, if we must be constrain'd,
more interwoven and complete
To fit the naked foot of;
Let us inspect the lyre, and weigh the stress
Of every chord, and see what may be gain'd
By ear industrious, and attention meet:
Plural Whiners of sound and syllable, no less Than of his coinage, let us be Jealous of dead leaves in the bay wreath crown;
So, if we may not let the be free,
She will be bound with garlands of her own.
