Sonnet Writing: To Himself- Bradley, Matt, Kellie

1. Genre Of Poetry Plural
2. Noun Rhyming With Fame
3. Adjective
4. Animal
5. Color Other Than Blue
6. Noun
7. Part Of The Body
8. Noun Plural
9. Two Syllable Adjective
10. Noun Correlating To Previous Adjective

Sonnet Writing: To Himself- Bradley, Matt, Kellie

Young men should not write genre of poetry plural, if they dream

To such, sweet thoughts and mighty feelings seem

As though, like adjective things, they rarely came.

Eager as men when haply they have heard

Of some new songster, some gay-feathered ______,

That hath over ______ color other than blue _____ seas strayed in hope to find

Fain would they catch the bright things in their _____part of the body_____,

And cage them into sonnets as they come.

No; they should serve their wants most sparingly,

Till the ripe time of song, when young thoughts fail,

Then their sad sonnets, like old noun plural, might be two syllable adjective as noun correlating to previous adjective, and yet grey-haired and hale.

©2025 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserved.