Beach Day

It was a hot summer's day, and everyone was at the beach. There were kids playing in the sand, and many people cooling off in the water. Two sisters were among the many there that day. They were swimming in the ocean when one of them, _____^{Name}_____, heard faint music. " It's the ice cream truck!" _____^{Same Name}_____ said to her sister. The girls quickly ran over to grab some money before running to join the already long line in front of the truck. They waited, and waited, but the line didn't seem to be going anywhere. The sun was beating down on them, and it felt like it was getting hotter. After what seemed like hours standing on the burning sand, the girls were finally at the front of the line. Just as they were about to order, the man in the ice cream truck told them that he was sold out.
