"Emma? Regina?"

Emma broke away from the brunette and stumbled to her feet, her Noun - Plural hidden behind her back and blushing furiously. "Snow? I - what are you doing here?" she stammered, trying to Verb Regina some Noun so she could get herself together.

"I could ask you the same ______ Proper Noun ____!" Snow White replied, looking as if she might ______ Verb - Base Form right there and then. Her doe eyes were so Adjective Emma thought the woman's Noun - Plural might pop out at any second, and her mouth hung open.

Regina repressed her Noun and embarrassment once she had managed to get to her feet and somewhat presentable. "Someone attacked us. Your daughter, being the Noun she is, knocked me to the ground in an attempt to Verb me," she huffed, allowing Noun to show in her voice to make the lie slightly more believable. For effect, the Mayor straightened her blazer arrogantly and held her head

Adjective.

"What, and her hand just fell into your article of clothing?" Snow exclaimed. How could her own daughter stoop as low as Verb - Present ends in ING with their life-long enemy? The ex-Evil Queen's lie was almost believable, but she knew what she had Verb - Past Participle: her daughter - who she had thought was straight straddling the woman who had made their lives a living hell for so long, with her hand down said woman's leggings, Verb - Present ends in ING her.

Emma winced at her mothers words and spluttered, desperately trying to come up with a response and failing miserably. This time, even Regina couldn't back her up - she was just as Adjective.

"You know what? I don't want to know," the Saviour's mother muttered, turning her head away with her eyes closed in _____. Opening her eyes and frowning, she spoke again. "Sort yourselves out and _____verb_____back to the camp. I'm sure there's something you can both _____verb_____- other than each other."

With that, she turned and headed ______back to the camp, shaking her head.

The Sheriff turned to face her partner in crime, grimacing. Regina's eyes were squeezed shut and she
