The Monster of West Hill Pond

If you travel to Camp Workcoeman and head down to West Hill Pond on a quiet day, you just might catch a glimpse of the West Hill Pond Monster. The monster looks like a Adjective Adjective Noun and is nearly Number feet long. It has Noun - Plural that stick out from the side of its Adjective Noun and a Noun big enough to eat a man. According to some, it has Adjective Noun - Plural and it kind of Noun - Plural when it ventures out on land. But in the Noun - watch out! It can swim Adjective - Comparative than a Noun can Verb - makes a mile a minute on a good day. Sometimes the monster likes to Verb up on unwary Noun - Plural and blow Noun at them. The ones it doesn't carry off to Verb, that is.

A Verb - Past Tense I heard about spotted the monster early one evening as he was walking along the pond. He tried to shoot it with his rifle. The man was a crack shot, but not one of his bullets touched that monster. It scared the heck out of him and he high tailed it home faster than you can say Jack Robinson. Left his rifle behind him and claimed the monster ate it.

Sometimes, when the monster has been quiet for a while, people start saying it is gone for good. Some folks even dredge up that old tale that says how Pecos Bill heard about the West Hill Pond monster and bet some cowpokes that he could wrestle that monster until it said uncle. According to them folks, the fight lasted for days and created a hurricane around Bear Lake. Finally, Bill flung that there monster over his shoulder and it flew so far it went plumb around the world and landed in Loch Ness, where it lives to this day.

Course, we know better than that. The West Hill Pond Monster is just hibernating-like. Keep your eyes open at dusk and maybe you'll see it come out to feed. Just be careful swimming in the pond, or you might be its next meal!
