The Fox and the Six Cats

There was once _____ Number _____ Animal (plural) who all belonged to an old lady called Miss _____ First Name of a Person. There was a _____ Colour _____ Animal, a _____ Colour _____ Animal, a _____ Colour one, a _____ Colour one, a _____ Colour one, and on that was every color mixed.

Every day for their dinner Miss _____ First Name of a Person put out _____ Number dishes of boiled _____ Noun and _____ Noun. The _____ Animal loved _____ Noun, and ate their dinners hungrily, always wishing for more.

'If only we knew where these _____ Noun come from, we might be able to go and get some,' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal, _____ Action her _____ Part of Body _____ Action.

'I know where they live!' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal. 'They live in the river that runs in the field at the bottom of our garden! Last night, when I was prowling a out there, I saw a man with a long _____ Noun and _____ Noun. _____ First Name of a Person threw a _____ Noun into the river and very soon, when _____ First Name of a Person pulled it out again, there was a _____ Action _____ Noun on the end.'

'Ho!' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal, yawning widely. 'So that's were the _____ Noun come from, is it? Well, I don't see how we can catch any, unless we have a _____ Noun and _____ Noun ourselves!'

All the cats had listened to what the _____ Colour _____ Animal had said , and each had made up his _____ Part of Body that he would fo that night all by himself, and watch the _____ Noun at work.

So when night fell all the _____ Animal started off for the river, and none of them saw each other, for they trod so _____ Action of their velvet _____ Part of Body.

The _____ Noun was there. _____ Noun had baited his _____ Noun, and was just casting it into the wide river. Then he felt in his pocket for his _____ Noun, for he loved to smoke whilst he was waiting in the moonlight for the fist to bite. But he had left his pipe in his cottage at the other end of the field.

_____ Expression!' he said crossly. 'I must either go without my smoke or walk back to my cottage. well, I will balance my _____ Noun carefully here, and go quickly to fetch my pipe. I don't suppose any fish will bite yet.'

_____ First Name of a Person put his _____ Noun down and set off to walk to his cottage; and, do you know, he had hardly taken ten steps before a big _____ Noun snapped at the bait! The hook stuck into his _____ Part of Body and it was caught!

Then it began to _____ Action and _____ Action, and the _____ Number watching _____ Animal suddenly saw it jumping in and out of the water. Each of them darted forward to take the _____ Noun, and how

_____ Adjective _____ they were when they saw the others!

'Quick!' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal _____, pouncing on the _____ Noun _____ and holding it. 'One of you reel in the _____ Noun _____.'

The _____ Colour _____ Animal _____ Action _____ in the line and pulled the _____ Noun _____ nearer. The _____ Colour _____ Animal _____ fetched the landing net to catch the _____ Noun _____ in. The _____ Colour _____ helped to hold it, whilst the _____ Colour _____ Animal (plural) _____ Action _____ direction all the time. The _____ Number _____ Animal (plural) _____ ran to each in turn, giving a _____ Part of Body _____ here and a _____ Part _____ of Body _____ there. _____ Animal (plural) _____ were all as _____ Adjective _____ as could be.

The _____ Noun _____ pulled hard. The _____ Noun _____ bent nearly in tow. The _____ Colour _____ Animal _____ found it quite difficult to hold. and was half afraid she would be pulled into the water.

The _____ Colour _____ Animal _____ wound the line in steadily, and the _____ Noun _____ was pulled nearer and nearer to the bank. Then the _____ Colour _____ Animal _____ and the _____ Animal _____ tried to put the landing net over it, and very soon they managed to. the _____ Noun _____ was caught! It slipped into the net, the _____ Animal (plural) _____ lifted it ashore, and the big _____ Noun _____ lay shining in the moonlight.

'The

_____ Animal is mine!' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal. 'I held the _____ Noun!'

'No, it's mine!' said the _____ Colour one. 'I reeled in the _____ Noun!'

'Well, I fetched the landing-net!' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal.

'And I helped to hold it!' said the _____ Animal.

'I told you all what to do!' said the _____ Number one. 'Besides, I'm sure I saw the _____ Noun first. it should be mine.'

Then they all began to quarrel hard, and a _____ Animal, who was passing that way, heard them, and came to see what the matter was. when he saw the big _____ Noun lying there he was pleased, and made up his mind to get it for himself.

'Now, what's the matter?' _____ Animal asked. 'Come, come, do not make this noise.'

'We each of us want the _____ Noun,' said the _____ Colour _____ Animal. 'We don't know who should have it.'

'well, I will be your judge,' said the Animal. 'Now, I have heard that you all have beautiful voices, and often sing to the moon. I will hear you all sing, and then whichever of you has the Adjective voice shall have the Noun.'

The Animal (plural) agree, for each secretly thought that his own Part of Body was far the best.

'Very well,' said the sly Animal. 'Now I will hear you all together. Sit up straight, fix your eyes on the moon, and sing your most beautiful song to her for Number minutes with-out stopping. Don' take your Part of Body from the moon or that will count Number mark against you.'

The Animal (plural) all sat up straight, looked up at the moon and began to caterwaul. Oh, what a Adjective noise it was! The Animal thought it was Adjective; but did he wait to judge the singing? Not he! All the Animal were looking hard at the moon and saw nothing but that, so the artful Animal quietly picked up the Noun and ran off with it, Action to himself as he heard the Adjective song behind him.

For quite Number minutes the cats sang their best, and then, becoming tire, they looked down to as the Animal which of them had won. But he wasn't there! Nor was the Noun!

'Oh the Expression! Oh, the Expression! Oh the Expression!' cried all the Animal (plural) angrily. 'He has stolen the fish from yo!'

Then, oh, dear me! The Noun returned, and when he found the Number Animal howling Adjective, and his Noun and Noun all disarranged, he was Adjective!
he sent them mewling away.

'If only we had been Expression and shared the big Noun between us we should be Adjective if now!' said the Colour Animal. 'How Adjective we are!'

And they were. weren't they?
