

Mao and the fiends

1. Adjective
2. Determiner
3. Determiner
4. Noun - Plural
5. Verb - Past Tense

Mao and the fiends

Once upon a time, Mao was playing in the sand patch when he saw Basil come out the back door. He growled and went behind the shed to sleep. He found the perfect spot, a good balance of dirt, dead grass and rocks. Ooo _____ Adjective thought Mao the _____ Determiner. He curled up and went to sleep. In his dream Basil was _____ Determiner evil cat that could summon dead _____ Noun - Plural called fiends. He was creeping up on him every second. Then BOOM! He springs Mao! He gets up and sprints. Then he relized it wasn't a dream. He was running as fast as he could. The fiends were catching up on him! Then he thought of Jackie Chan and did a triple backflip, summersault, dive, roll and _____ Verb - Past Tense them in the face. Maoso wins! +100 points.

Game Over