

Daisy and Shukri

1. Adverb
2. Adverb
3. Adjective
4. Proper Noun
5. Adverb

Daisy and Shukri

A little _____^{Adverb} at first, a little too _____^{Adverb}, I'll admit. We'd never done it before. We hadn't even seen one, only heard them scratching around in the bushes at night. But we understood what we had to do--it's our duty as citizens and all that. And after a while, we really got into it. I had the _____^{Adjective} stone mallet from the shed, Bridget had the kitchen knife, and we got into a rhythm. Smack, stab, smack, stab. And _____^{Proper Noun} went a bit crazy, going stabstabstabstab, and then I took over with the mallet, gave it a good going over. It was brutal, honestly. So it should have died right there and _____^{Adverb}.