Petrarch, Wyatt, and Howard, Oh My!

The living Noun that o'er my thought doth reign,

And in mine heart establishd his throne,

Oft approaches me clad in Noun - Plural alone

To Verb - Base Form and spread his banner 'cross my brain.

Yet she that Verb - Base Form me love and lover's pain,

Will that my Adjective desire stay unknown,

And reverence and reason Noun postpone,

For my burning Noun giveth her disdain.

Thereby, Two Syllable Adjective love fleeth to my heart,

Abandoning his travail with Noun - Plural and cries,

And hideth his face from the world apart.

To serve my master, I endure love's smart,

For love he Verb - Past Tense, and now from loving dies.

Yet, sweet is the end Noun love slays the hart.
