When Reports Attack!!!

Sitting at my desk seemed like a natural task. Looking at my _____ Adjective computer and sipping my _____ Adjective cup of tea couldn't be more normal. I received an email from my _____ Adjective manager saying, "I need those _____ Noun - Plural this evening. They are important to Rob and his team. I worked until my _____ Part of Body ached and smashed calculator buttons until my _____ Part of Body were sore, but I finally got it done at _____ Time. I thought, "finally, I can lay down in my _____ Adjective bed", until my children woke me up by playing _____ Name of a game downstairs. Going into work the next day, I knew I made an _____ Skill and behavior. Rob seemed cheerful and gave me kudos on the great work. My manager took me out to eat type of _____ Type of Food for giving me a job well-done. I felt _____ Adjective and my work was getting recognized. _____ Time o'clock came and it was time to go home from an _____ Adjective day, until the _____ Noun rang. "I need you to do something", she explained. "You made such a great _____ Skill and behavior on the office that I want to make you our "go-to" person for actions like this." I love making a difference, I explained. "I will gladly help, let me just trade out my tea for coffee."
