

NISP Emergency Action Plan

1. Preposition Or Subordinating Conjunction
-

NISP Emergency Action Plan

Hi how are you, is this a tool that I can use for this NCMS meeting?

Testing testing one two three, can you dig it. Yes I can. Emergencies happen everyday. I don't trust that our contractors know what they would do to protect classified information from fire, hurricane, theft. Etc. Etc.

Any emergency situation that renders the facility incapable of safeguarding classified material.

Preposition or subordinating conjunction shall develop procedures for safeguarding classified material in emergency situations. The procedures shall be as simple and practical as possible and should be adaptable to any type of emergency that may reasonably arise. Contractors shall promptly report to the CSA any emergency situation that renders the facility incapable of safeguarding classified material.