The Nonsense Address

Four score and seven years ago our _____ Noun - Plural brought forth on this _____ Noun, a new nation, conceived in _____ Proper Noun, and dedicated to the proposition that all _____ Noun - Plural are created _____ Adjective.

Now we are _____ Determiner in a great civil _____ Verb - Present Tense, testing whether that _____ Coordinating conjunction, or any _____ Verb - Past Tense so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great _____ Noun of that _____ Noun. We have come to _____ Verb a portion of that field, as a final _____ Verb - Present Tense _____ Noun for those who here gave their _____ Noun - Plural that that _____ Noun might _____ Verb. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate -- we can not consecrate -- we can not hallow -- this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us -- that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion -- that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain -- that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom -- and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.
