There once was a job description that needed a writer for their desired media. "Oh, if only I had a script that was well written!" they would cry. "Sure, I've hired a previous schmuck in the past...but now I need someone who is easy to work with! Someone who takes direction and delivers on time!" And then, as if preferred deity heard their plea, the contact information for such a writer appeared in their hands. The job description wept with joy. "And he even works for dollar amount! So affordable!" Meanwhile the writer sat by his phone, politely refusing sex from attractive woman. "Not now, honey. I'm working."
