The Day I Saw a Rat in my House

The day I saw a rat in my house was the best day of my Noun . The moment they Verb - Past Tense across my Adjective floor, and looked at me with those Adjective , Adjective eyes, I knew we were in love. I didn't care they had a family Preposition the Noun , what we had was Adverb special.

You, you would eat my Noun , and hiss at me when I came too close. And I, I would Verb - Base Form at your Adjective , and hope you weren't carrying a Noun of infectious diseases through my house. They say love is Adjective , but I say love is a long Noun and pointed Noun . You can stay as long as you like, but only if it's in my Noun .

Thank goodness my landlord doesn't think a rat infestation is a problem.
