A Day In The Life Of LAUMC

Once upon a time in a city named Long Beach, California stood a Adjective Church called Los Altos United Methodist Church. The church was led by a number of interesting characters. The church had a Adjective Adjective minister named Adverb McMillan. He had a knack for making people Verb - Base Form after hearing his Adjective sermons. His beautiful wife was active as well, frequently knitting Noun - Plural for the churches Noun Noun. The church had Adverb choir that was led by Mary Breuer, widely known as the Adjective - Ends in EST est choir director in the United States. Her directing style has been described as Adjective and Adjective. Her choirs sounded as if a Noun was Verb - Present ends in ING. She was accompanied by Derek Gordon, the churches Adjective organ player. He stroked the keys like a Noun massaging a Noun. Everything he played sounded like Singer People Hate imitating Noun. The church grounds looked like a Adjective had vomited all over a Noun, thanks to the church Property Manager, Buttercup. The chairman of the board of trustees was a Adjective man named John Shearer. He once led a campaign to allow Noun to Verb - Base Form in the church parking lot over the summer. The Mulios nearly left the church after John set fire to a Noun and Verb - Past Tense the church organist. Yosh and LaDonna weren't members but both of them had Adjective outings with the Ladies Auxiliary. Peter and Kim attended the Praise Band service. They both loved how Emilio would Verb - Base Form the bass player. The star of the choir was a Adjective man named Tommy Cheeks. He was extremely handsome and had giant Noun - Plural. Once he sang a solo called Verb - Base Form my Noun.

Everyone Verb - Past Tense. And that's the story of a Adverb little church called LAUMC.
