

Naming the Baby

1. Adverb
2. Adjective
3. Fruit
4. Adjective

Naming the Baby

Molly and Will were [_____ Adverb _____] [_____ Adjective _____] trying to choose a name for their baby. An early favorite, [_____ fruit _____], was rejected for being too [_____ Adjective _____]. For a while, Will liked [baby animal,] but Molly said, [exclamation!] What if the baby wants to grow up to be a [unusual job]? Baby name websites recommended classic names like [element] and trendy ones like [fast-food item.] Nothing seemed right.

Molly and Will [adverb] decided to consult their parents. Debbie suggested [famous artist's first name] and [name of artistic style]. Ron proposed [type of boat] and [funny-sounding type of bird,] which Betsy countered with [national park]. Hong favored [positive quality in a person], or [first three letters of previous word] for short. And Ken surprised everybody with his suggestions of [19th century president's first name] and [major religious figure.] But none of these names would do.

Finally, the joyous day arrived and Baby was named. All of Molly and Will's family and friends were [past tense verb] when the [old-timey form of communication] arrived in late November. Over a picture of the cutest baby in the world, it read, "Welcome, Baby [Single Named Celebrity.]"